

The Royal Sands Koh Rong Commitments

The Royal Sands Koh Rong commitment to reducing greenhouse gas emission.

Solar Energy: We have turned to solar energy as much as possible, including the lighting for all our walkways, the pier and the uplighting of plants and trees.

The resort also has its own wastewater treatment plant. We would like to see this becoming a requirement for all existing and future developments on the island. This will go a long way towards preserving our beautiful island. To reduce the use of single-use plastics, we have our very own drinking water bottling plant with recyclable glass bottles also being commissioned.

We participate in World Cleanup Day every September 18th, as well as Earth Hour each year, when all electric lights are switched off and the resort is lit by small candles in the shape of the Earth. To further enhance the environment, we also join Cambodia's National Tree Planting Day.

To achieve our goal to reduce greenhouse emissions we are planning to reduce meat consumption and replace one meat dish for vegetarian dish.
